Primary RE Curriculum Overview 2023-2024

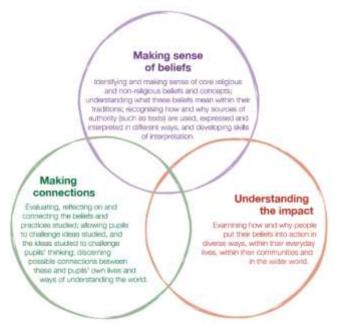

Religious Education at Kates Hill

The principal aim of religious education is to explore what people believe and what difference this makes to how they live, so that pupils can gain the knowledge, understanding and skills needed to handle questions raised by religion and belief, reflecting on their own ideas and ways of living.

The RE teaching and learning approach

The RE teaching and learning approach has three core elements, which are woven together to provide breadth and balance within teaching and learning about religions and beliefs. Teaching and learning in the classroom with incorporate all three elements, allowing for overlap between elements as suits the religion, concept and question being explored

Where RE is most effective, enquiry is placed at the heart of learning. Schools should develop a well-defined and systematic approach to using enquiry in RE. Enquiry is most effective and consistent where it is based on a clear, straightforward model.

Effective enquiry in RE

- is not age-limited examples of effective enquiry were found at all ages
- involves sustained learning pupils set up the enquiry, carry it out, evaluate their learning and revisit the questions
- starts by engaging pupils in their learning making sure they can see the relevance and importance of the enquiry and how it relates to their own concerns
- allows pupils time to gather information and draw conclusions before asking them to reflect on or apply their learning the focus on 'learning from' will probably come late in the process as they ask the key question so what?
- enables pupils to reconsider their initial thinking and extend their enquiry as they begin to see new levels of possibility if pupils have identified key questions at the outset, they might want to reconsider these questions, add more, or re-prioritise their importance
- allows pupils to use their creativity and imagination ensuring that experiential learning and opportunities to foster spiritual development are built into the process of enquiry

The enquiry Cycle

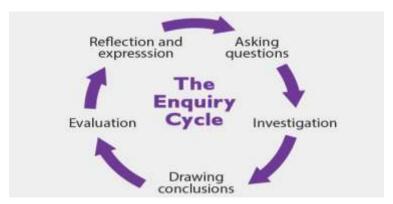

Where RE works well, pupils are given carefully structured opportunities to find out for themselves, making their own connections and drawing their own conclusions.

The cycle may be summarised:

Asking questions

Engaging pupils from the outset in 'big questions' provides a context for carrying out an investigation.

Investigation using

- effective enquiry approaches to promote questioning and discussion about religious material
- a Philosophy for Children (P4C) approach, which can deepen and extend pupils' investigation into religion, building the skills of effective argument

Drawing conclusions

Using a balance of

- first-hand experience access to examples of living religious practice to research RE topics
- high-quality resources (some web-based) to stimulate pupils' learning

Evaluation

Impersonal evaluation asks pupils to give well-founded reasons and justify their conclusions or views rather than just expressing their personal feelings or responses to the enquiry.

Reflection and expression

Where RE is highly effective, opportunities for reflection and creativity are integrated within the process of enquiry and arise directly from pupils' engagement with religious material, enabling them to deepen understanding and present their findings.
